

Center on Race, Inequality, and the Law Student Fellowship Program

The Center on Race, Inequality, and the Law engages in research, public education, advocacy, and litigation to advance its mission of shaping how people understand, diagnose, and address issues of race and inequality. We are seeking applications from rising 2L, 3L, and LL.M. students for our inaugural Student Fellowship Program, to take place during the 2017-2018 academic year.

Student Fellows will conduct research into topics of race and inequality for use in advocacy, litigation, and public education under the guidance and supervision of Center leadership; assist with the planning and execution of the Center's events on race and inequality; and contribute to the Center's work on race and inequality. Student Fellows will receive a stipend, be featured on the Center's website, and may have the opportunity to meet practitioners, advocates, and scholars engaged in work at the intersection of racial justice and inequality. The expected time commitment is an average of 10 hours per week over approximately 30 weeks. Student Fellows will work with the Center's Faculty Director, Professor Anthony Thompson; and the Center's Executive Director, Vincent Southerland.

If you are interested, please submit the following materials in a single PDF to the Center's Executive Director, Vincent Southerland, at vincent.southerland@nyu.edu:

- (1) Cover letter explaining why you would like to become a Student Fellow of the Center and your interest in race and inequality
- (2) Resume
- (3) Unofficial law school transcript
- (4) List of two references with email addresses

Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis. Selections will be made by August. To learn more about the Center on Race, Inequality, and the Law, visit <http://www.law.nyu.edu/centers/race-inequality-law>
