Judge Edward Weinfeld ('21)

Judge Weinfeld's storied career sets him among NYU Law's finest alums, and his impact on the legal profession is a profound credit to our Law School.

A lifelong New Yorker, Weinfeld opened his own practice in the city after graduation. In 1950, he was appointed by President Truman to the Federal bench, a position he held for nearly four decades. Weinfeld took great pride in his Federal district court career, emphasizing that all cases big and small mattered equally. His shrewd reasoning made him known for decisions that were rarely reversed.

At the time of his death at age 86, Weinfeld was the oldest active Federal district judge in the country. The Weinfeld program honors his incredible achievements, and recognizes our loyal donors whose support ensures NYU Law will continue to educate future generations of such giants in the legal profession.
