3 Click Share if you are ready to share your screen

Getting Started with Annotations

The screenshot shows the Zoom interface during a session. At the top, a dark control bar contains various icons for session management. A purple box highlights the 'Unmute', 'Start Video', 'Manage Participants', 'Polls', 'New Share', 'Pause Share', and 'Annotate' icons. A red circle highlights the 'Annotate' icon, which is a pencil. Below the control bar, a search bar and a document viewer are visible. The document viewer shows a case titled 'United States v. Dickerson, 166 F.3d 667' with buttons for 'Copy Citation' and 'Request Law School Case Brief'. The document text includes 'United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit', 'January 30, 1998, Argued ; February 8, 1999, Decided', and 'No. 97-4750'.

1 Once your Share has begun, look for the docked control bar at the top of the Zoom window

2 Click Annotate to open the annotation toolbar

Setting Annotation Permissions

By default, all participants will be able to annotate

The screenshot shows the Zoom interface with a document open. The top toolbar includes options like Unmute, Start Video, Manage Participants, Polls, New Share, Pause Share, Annotate, and More. The 'More' menu is open, showing options such as Chat, Breakout Rooms, Invite, Record, Closed Caption, Disable participants annotation, Show Names of Annotators, Hide Floating Meeting Controls, Share computer sound, Optimize Share for Full-screen View, and End Meeting. A yellow circle with the number '1' points to the 'More' button in the toolbar. A text box with an arrow points to the 'Disable participants annotation' option in the 'More' menu.

1 Click More in the docked control bar, then select Disable participants annotation if you don't want other users to annotate
